O. C. POWING, Editor and Proprietor.

SAYS IT IS A FAROE.

The Candelaria Chloride Belt, of the 6th. baags away at Reno and the Board of Trade, as follows, all of which is uncalled for and unjust:

The people of the State of Nevada, outside of Reno, have got their stomachs full of the (R-u) State Board of Trade. It is only a mark used in the interest of Frank G. Newlands to further his election to Congress or whatever office the Republicanism may deem proper to run the California chip for. No true Republican vote for such a "backslider" as Newlands. He comes to the State of Nevada from California, builds a residence, denounces the Democratic party, and for why? Because by running on the Republican ticket he can square in for a few thousand dollars. If the voters of our State support such a man for office they ought to be severely punished for the rest of their lives and the "star" "two borough" before their eyes daily about New York. Only a year ago while in New York City, Mr. Newlands met a prominent mining man of Nevada county, who is a staunch Democrat, and to whom he (Newlands) then and there declared his loyalty to the Democratic party, and advised him to make a strong statement to the effect that his camp should be a strong Democratic precinct at this election. But we suppose at the time of this statement the Hon. Francis had not been interviewed by H. M. Yerington, the bell mule of the Republican party, and when he was with them he said about the Stockton Convention. Mr. Newlands is a corporation man from the west. If he had "dropped" he would have opposed him all the time. Let us elect true residents of the State of Nevada to office, not parties out "comping" for over the moon turns. [Since the above was in type the Republican State Convention have nominated H. F. Burton.—Ed.]

SPEAKER REED'S FIGHT.

The Democrats Hoping That They Will be Able to Defeat Reed.

There is a great deal of interest in Washington as to the outcome to-day in Maine, especially in Speaker Reed's district. In a contest where the probable majority narrows down to a margin of less than 1,000, the under dog has a possible chance, and it is this fact that makes the contest interesting in Washington. There is a large array of Democratic talent which would like to see Mr. Reed repudiated by his district, which they argue would be a distinct and emphatic rebuke to the Speaker for the new methods of procedure which he has introduced in the House. Advice from his district, however, have not been such as to give encouragement to this hope. If the Speaker's majority should be small, falling below 500, his election will probably be contested. If the next House should be Democratic it will not be inclined to display much generosity to the present Speaker and such a contest would perhaps be a serious matter for Mr. Reed. Judging from the Cummings' resolution, which called public attention to the increase of force at the Kittery Navy Yard and subsequent reports that legal obstacles existed as to the right of many of the citizens of the district to vote at this election, it appears that the Democratic managers have been preparing the public mind in advance, so that there would be no surprise in case a contest was made. Mr. Cummings has been in telegraphic communication with Mr. Frank, the Democratic candidate, and there will doubtless be close scrutiny of all those matters during the election in Speaker Reed's district. If the case can be established against the legality of Mr. Reed's election, if he is elected, the Democratic managers are prepared to make the most of it.

No County Division.

The Belmont Courier says:

The Reno Journal voices the sentiment of the people of eastern and northern Nevada when it talks in a recent issue of that paper, that the self-constituted "train-rail" of the New State Constitution undid a too big a task when they drafted Section 2 of Article XV, of the proposed constitution. Framers of constitutions and members of legislatures will be taught to leave the question of county boundaries severely alone. Consolidation and segregation schemes are always dangerous. The people will insist that they have the right to enjoy self-government, and were to the man who attempt to rob them of that privilege. The western world is "philanthropic" will do the right thing by minding their own business, and letting the affairs of the "Great East" alone. The people of this State have suffered too many hardships, because of the demoralization of silver, etc., to allow a few wealthy politicians to add "insult to injury" by consolidating county governments, to the great detriment of the people.

Rain has fallen in the lake region and central valleys. Local showers have fallen in the South Atlantic and Gulf States. There are heavy rains in Texas. The temperature has fallen in the upper lake region and Minnesota, thence southwestward to Mexico. The fall has been very decided in Iowa, Illinois and Northern Missouri, light frost having occurred in northern Colorado and northern Iowa, and a killing frost in western Minnesota.

The official census figures give Portland a population of 82,442. This includes East Portland. The population of Multnomah county is 75,267—a gain of 14,280 over the first enumeration.

A strong movement to defeat Powderly for General Master of the Knights of Labor at the coming election is being made.

The Candelaria Chloride Belt dubs H. M. Yerington the bell mule of the Republican party.

John K. Foster, of Indiana, has been offered the Spanish Ministry.

A VISIT TO CALIFORNIA.

The President and Four Cabinet Members to Come to the Coast Next Spring.

It has been learned that the President, as well as four members of his Cabinet—among them Secretary Blaine—and their families, have already made arrangements to visit California next Spring or Fall to assist in the dedication and other opening ceremonies of the Leland Stanford, Jr. University. The exact time of the start has not yet been determined upon. The Presidents of nearly all of the Eastern colleges and educational institutions will accompany the party, which will be taken to California on a special train of new palace coaches which are now being made. According to the plan as agreed upon, they will go to San Francisco direct, and after remaining there for three days will proceed to Senator Stanford's residence at Menlo Park, where they will remain as his guests until after the conclusion of the ceremonies of the opening of the Leland Stanford, Jr. University, which will occupy three days. From there the entire party will make a tour of California, visiting all points of interest, which will include a trip to Yosemite Valley. It is expected that the trip will occupy about seven weeks. It is barely possible that the trip will commence in May next, though the present indications are that it will take place in August, as the University will be formally opened for students in September of next year. About twenty prominent Senators and Representatives will accompany the party, as well as other distinguished invited guests, who will be taken on the special train.

BARTINE HONORED.

The Carson Tribune kindly remarks:

The renomination of Congressman Bartine was a high and deserved honor, but the remarks of Mr. Newlands in seconding the nomination added so much to the honor conferred that language fails in giving proper expression thereto, and of a surety Mr. Newlands could have conceived nothing that has raised him more in the estimation of all who heard the remarks. Mr. Bartine's early life as a soldier, his struggles in fitting himself for the place he now occupies in the legal profession and his action relative to the silver question in Congress were referred to in so pleasing a manner that a heart of admiration for the speaker was made to run through the entire audience, and the conclusion of the remarks a rousing cheer for Francis G. Newlands made the building tremble with the resonant sounds.

Nevada in the history of Nevada has a candidate for political honor been so honored in convention by one who was considered his opponent for the position as Congressman Bartine before the assembled multitude in the Convention hall yesterday, and it will doubtless prove an incentive to continued action by our Representative in all matters pertaining to the present and future interests of Nevada. All honor to Mr. Newlands for the noble stand taken by him and for the very clear explanation volunteered by him for the change in his political sentiments. The address will long be remembered and its sentiments highly prized. A proud position the gentleman occupies, not only as one doing all in his power for the good of our State, but as an able man and a thorough Republican.

A Sad Telegram.

The Weekly Modoc, of Alturas, says:

A telegram was received here by T. B. Rowe, to the effect that James W. Poor, County Clerk of this county, had died at Reno on the morning of September 2, after an illness of only a few days. This was a terrible blow to the people of this place, as Mr. Poor was one of our most respected citizens. Mr. Poor was an old resident of this county, and well known to everyone to be an honest, upright citizen, a kind father and loving husband. Two years ago Mr. Poor was elected to the office of Clerk of Modoc County, which office he has successfully and faithfully filled. He leaves a wife and four children, together with brothers and sisters and a host of warm friends to mourn his loss.

The death of J. W. Poor caused all the flags in town to be lowered at half mast.

The Lakeview Examiner has the following upon the same subject:

A dispatch received here Tuesday morning conveyed the sad intelligence that J. W. Poor, County Clerk of Modoc, had died at Reno on that morning. Mr. Poor, it will be remembered, left Alturas about two weeks ago for the Sandwich Islands for the benefit of his health, but he only got as far as Reno when death overtook him. Mr. Poor was a man well liked by everyone who knew him, and he leaves a host of friends in Modoc who will deeply mourn his untimely death.

The Political Pot.

The Austin Reville ep-ulated as follows in its issue of the 5th:

We have it from reliable authority that John R. Bradley, son of old bread-horses, will be the nominee of the Democrats at Reno, on Thursday, Sept. 11th, for Governor. Mr. Bradley is a wide-awake citizen, a thorough business man and a man that has considerable magnetism about him and if nominated, he will make the fight very warm. If the Democrats place such men as Bradley for Governor, Pete Dunn for Controller, MacMillan and Fitzgerald for Judges and an equally good man for Congress, it will be no child's play, and while we believe the Republicans will win, if they put up a good ticket, they will find that it will be no scrub race but a race of giants and it will not do for them to set still or remain idle but they must buckle on their armor and to work.

The Rich Growing Richer.

Rich Americans are so numerous now that it is interesting to be reminded that a quarter of a century ago there were in New York only eleven men who were possessed of more than a million dollars, and that of those but a couple were bona fide "Yankees." Of the remaining nine, four were Germans, two either Scotch or Irish, two French and one was a Jew. To-day the same city boasts a thousand individuals all worth upward of a million dollars each.—London Weekly.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

RICH GOWNS FOR THE TROUSSEAU OF AN ARCHDUCHESS.

Matters Personal Concerning Women Who Are Famous and Some Who Are Not—Hints About Summer Dressing and Housekeeping.

Much excitement of a sensational kind has been roused in the breasts of the fair sex of Vienna relative to the magnificent and truly imperial trousseau got up by the chief Austrian and Hungarian firms for the approaching nuptials of her imperial highness the Archduchess Marie Valerie, youngest daughter of the emperor and empress of Austria. The excitement reached its culminating point on the intelligence being echoed abroad that the Vienna public would be admitted to a suite of apartments in the Hofburg (the imperial residence) to inspect the trousseau on a certain day between certain hours in the latter half of the week.

The fact of so much magnificence and finery about to be exposed to the vulgar gaze was, in anticipation, regarded as a rare treat which many a fair one would willingly and heroically have sacrificed not a little to behold. Five saloons in the "Radetzky Apartments" of the Hofburg were set apart for the exhibition, and the rich assortment of marvels of the toilet and of domestic economy generally were certainly set off to no mean advantage, the display surpassing—and that is saying a great deal—the most sanguine expectations of the severest lady critics. Household linen was on view in profusion, while articles of under-clothing were in texture and style all that possibly could be desired.

The wedding presents of the imperial parents and of the various members of the imperial family to the bride elect consisted of jewels of great price, of serviceable and ornamental plate, of porcelain and glass, besides a quantity of beautiful lace. The gowns and "costumes" of her imperial highness will not be completed till just before the wedding day, to the pronounced mortification of a large percentage of the would be gazers, who in the absence of the one thing needful to complete the trousseau category went so far as to resent the omission as a personal affront. The costliness and beauty of the jewels and precious stones went, however, a long way toward appeasing the greed of that section of fair humanity who find redemption in silks and salvation in stuffs, and whose weakness for pearls and hats is chronic and incurable.

This is by no means the first time that the jewelers and silversmiths of Vienna and Budapest have won laurels at shows of this kind, and on the present occasion enough cannot be said in praise of the artistic ingenuity and the originality of conception characterizing the diadems, the "colliers," the bracelets and the rings. Equal praise is due to the manufacturers of the linen and the makers of the lace, while some portions of the needlework, embroidery, stitching and the like, in the chasteness of its design and finish, were, to use the words of a lady admirer in the crowd, "irresistibly lovely."—Vienna Cor. Gallegani Messenger.

A Snake in Her Bonnet.

Tuesday evening about 8 o'clock the neighbors of Mrs. Kate Lynchbar were much alarmed to hear a succession of shrieks issue from that lady's residence and run instantly to her assistance. They met Mrs. Lynchbar, who is a widow, as she rushed from the house holding her hands to her head, but it was some time before she could calm herself sufficiently to tell them what was the matter. Her story was that having an engagement to go to church she had gone into a spare room for her bonnet, which, on coming home from morning service, she had put temporarily on a table in the room.

She picked up the bonnet, noticing that it seemed unusually heavy, but put it on her head, or tried to, for she was prevented from doing so by the presence of some body in it too large to permit her head to enter. Before she could snatch it off, however, whatever it was struck her on the head, she said, and frightened out of her wits she tore off the bonnet and what she declared she knew by the feel of its slimy body to be a snake. Though believing the lady was mistaken in the thing that had been in her bonnet her neighbors proceeded to thoroughly search the room and finally discovered a small puff adder behind a dressing case.

The creature showed fight, but the numbers being unequal it was at last dispatched. There being on the island no snakes of that kind, which is extremely venomous, the only explanation of its presence is that it must have been brought from Mexico in one of the fruit schooners plying between there and this place, and probably was concealed in a bunch of bananas Mrs. Lynchbar had that day purchased. Her hand prevented the blow the snake gave her from inflicting a wound, which in all likelihood would have proved a serious matter.—Galveston Cor. Philadelphia Times.

A Novel Bathing Costume.

The latest device in bathing costumes comes from the other side, where it was made for an English woman who has already worn one similar to it during a season at that kaleidoscopic seaside resort, Trouville. It is made of black satin—the heavy, glossy quality that comes with a linen back. The bodice is laid over a tight fitting lining of jean, which is enough support to the figure to enable the wearer to dispense with the stiff corset which many bathers consider indispensable.

It is high up about the throat and buttoned securely with jet balls. The satin is gathered back and front, and the fullness is "gaged" from the bust line down to a few inches below the waist, where a full skirt reaching nearly to the knee is set on with a "buttercup shirring." There are no sleeves. In each armhole is set a crescent shaped piece, which, when the arms are raised, the shoulder and is tied with a black silk cord. Black silk tights, with small satin trunks and shoes of soft black felt that are very pointed at the toes, somewhat like the "shoon" of the period of Richard III, complete this outfit. The fair owner says that satin holds its own against the onslaught of the soft sea waves better than any known fabric. It doesn't cling too closely, and wetting rather improves its luster.—Exchange.

Two Girls Bounce a Burglar.

Misses Lulu and Ella Lewis had an exciting experience with a negro burglar at their home recently. Miss Ella Lewis is the retiring postmistress of Gallatin, Tenn., and it was known by the would be burglar that she had considerable money, which she had just received in payment for her postoffice fixtures, which she had sold.

About 12 o'clock she was awakened by a man, who was standing by her bedside with one hand on her throat and the other feeling under her pillow and around the head of the bed. She immediately called her sister, who had retired in the same room, who responded gallantly to her calls for help.

The burglar drew a pistol from his pocket and cocked it, but before he could use it the young ladies seized him and gave him a thorough slugging, all the time carrying him toward the window of the room.

The young ladies finally reached the window with the midnight marauder, and by main strength they succeeded in throwing him out. He fell to the ground, ten feet below, on his head. After lying as if stunned by the blows and his exit from the room above he pulled himself together and made his escape.—Atlanta Constitution.

Styles in Dancing Gowns.

For dancing skirts are cut to just touch the ground in the back and clear the point of the foot in front. For evening parties the favorite materials are bright taffetas, crepe, tulle and gauze; for afternoon dances various fine woolen fabrics are admissible. Simplicity rules supreme, especially in girls' dresses, and what trimming there may be is confined to the hem and the bodice. Silk skirts are plain in front and at the sides, with empire flutes in the back, and a quilling at the bottom made of three or four layers of silk plaited thickly. Transparent tissues are gathered, though not closely, and only tulle of the lightest kind is used double. Much of the gossamer is embroidered with garlands of flowers, Greek patterns of ribbon running through embroidered olive branches and Louis XIV festoons caught up with true lovers' knots made of ribbon entwined in scrolls of flowers. Net skirts are threaded with velvet ribbons or darned with rows of floss silks in colors. Bodices of course recall the decoration of the skirt to a certain extent, and usually made full, with the high shoulder puffings increased by the addition of fly-away bows of fan plaitings of lace standing up like wings.—New York Sun.

Gen. Lee's Charming Daughter.

A trait that would have distinguished Miss Mary Lee, the younger daughter of Gen. R. E. Lee, among politicians is her wonderful memory for faces and names. Even a casual acquaintance met years before is not forgotten, and meeting him several years afterward she at once speaks his name and recalls all the details of their former meeting. Miss Lee came from Egypt to witness the unveiling of the statue of her father. She has spent the last five years in Portugal, France, Russia and the island of Madeira.

Miss Lee arrived in New York entirely unannounced to her many friends here, who would have gone in troops to the dock to meet her instead of allowing her to stand alone for two hours on the pier in a cold, drizzling rain. She had expected to find it hot in New York, and packed away all her wraps before landing, thereby contracting a severe cold. She is a tall woman of distinguished presence, and possesses that vivacious charm of manner and brilliancy of conversation which are nature's best gifts to her sex. Miss Lee will remain in America visiting friends in the south for a few months, when she will sail for Rome.—New York Cor. Richmond Dispatch.

Pretty and Held as a Counterfeiter.

A remarkable criminal case was decided before United States Commissioner Tavenor at Parkersburg, W. Va., the defendant being Mrs. Gertrude Russell, a young married woman of great personal beauty and a member of a wealthy Lawrence county (O.) family. For some months past numerous instances have occurred on both sides of the river in the vicinity of this city where parties applied to to furnish change for $20 gold pieces have found themselves in possession of gilded silver half dollars. After complying with the request for a long time it could not be decided who the very sick crook was, but ten days ago Mrs. Russell, it is charged, went into a local bank and attempted the trick, which failed. She was arrested and had her preliminary examination, being defended by ex-Governor J. B. Jackson and three other prominent attorneys. She was held for the federal grand jury in $1,000. The defendant fainting when the announcement of the result was made by the commissioner.—Baltimore Sun.

Neither Plays Nor Sings.

There is an old lady musician in this city who as a musical prodigy surpasses everything else of record. Her friends have furnished her a room in one of the downtown blocks, and there she can be seen and heard at all hours of the day. It is not known whether her friends are lovers of music or not, but at any rate she is never asked to play when visiting them. They probably belong to that class of people who never appreciate home talent. The lady has four diligent pupils. Her unoccupied time she spends in practicing. She can teach the theory of music well, but can play very little. Two pieces are all that she has ever tried to play. Her studies are now concentrated on the last measures of "Home, Sweet, Home," and if she lives long enough she will probably be able to play all of it. "Days of Absence" is her standby, and she is able to play it clear through. Sometimes, when the spirit moves her, she sings the words of "Old Aunt Rhody" to this music, but it doesn't sound well. She says: "I cracked my voice counting time for my scholars to play by, and if I can't play or sing very well I understand music well enough to teach."—Indianapolis News.

Phil Sheridan's Widow.

Mrs. Sheridan has almost utterly withdrawn from the world. Within the walls of her really beautiful home on Rhode Island avenue she lives in quiet, unostentatious grief for her loved husband, and in beautiful motherly devotion to her four children. About the elegant apartments, on the walls, in the niches, everywhere, are reminders of the lamented soldier to whom her life was so completely given. Portraits, busts, souvenirs of the gallant Phil, his equipments and relics of the war are here in profusion, and the youthful looking mother, surrounded by children whose tender affections center upon her, completes an ideal picture of a departed soldier's home. Mary, the eldest of the children, is a bright, pretty girl of 14; Louise and John, the twin daughters, are dainty maidens of 12, and little Phil is a delicate looking lad of 9. There is throughout the household a delightful air of graceful refinement, one of the results of diligent care on the part of this exemplary mother.—Cor. Philadelphia Times.

The Tailor Made Girl.

The tailor made girl becomes more masculine in attire every season. Just now the fancy runs to a suit of rough homespun or green checked, innocent of trimming and depending for its characteristic smartness on the cut and fit. The bodice is made habit fashion, with a little tail piece and a step collar showing a dandy looking white Muscilles tie, pierced by a diamond pin, while the skirt is fitted to the figure with no fullness or folds, either in front or at the sides, but with a few plaits spreading out in graceful, fanlike form at the back, giving spring to the short little tails of the basques. The popularity of this tailor made dress is due in a measure to its exclusiveness, for there is not a woman outside of the tailoring profession who can cut, fit and press a suit of this kind.—New York Press.

A Patch for a Crazy Quilt.

Late Wednesday night a young woman who was loitering in the evening air on the piazza of her home in Preston discovered by the lightning flash a man in a suspicious attitude near the pantry window. She could hardly believe it possible, but a second flash of lightning reassured her. She did not scream or faint or flutter, but walked calmly into the house and let out the dog. A minute later a stamped proof that the dog had found something to chase, and in a few minutes the animal returned with a recognizable portion of the man's trousers in his mouth. The bold Preston girl will add this trophy to her crazy quilt.—Norwich Bulletin.

The Joan of Arc Costume.

The Joan d'Arc costume, about which so much is said and written, is of fine white cashmere embroidered in silver fleur-de-lis. The skirt is slashed to reveal a silver gray faille petticoat, and the bodice is of the same gray silk, with a vest and collar ornamented with a fleur-de-lis framed in arabesques of silver braid. The white cashmere sleeve caps are shaped in rounded turrets and outlined in silver braid. The hat worn with this costume is of white straw, with the upturned diadem brim faced with gray velvet ornamented directly in front with a silver fleur-de-lis.—Exchange.

Secretary Bayard's Daughter.

Miss Louise Bayard, who is visiting Miss Elizabeth Moorhead, of Ellsworth avenue, Shady Side, is the daughter of ex-Secretary Bayard. She has been a great success in Washington society, having had the entire through her father's official position to the most exclusive circles of the capital. In appearance she is tall and slender. Her hair is between light and dark. She has a very pleasant and intellectual countenance. She is a young lady of remarkable strength of character, and made a very good impression on Pittsburg people.—Pittsburg Press.

It is now perfectly permissible for a young mother to walk along the streets of New York with her child. Heretofore such a thing has not been countenanced. She might lead an ugly, heavy jawed bull dog by a string, carry a pug or terrier or accept the escort of two men in no way related to her; she might also have the attendance of a maid or man servant along with an infant, or run about, but to be alone with the little one was the worst possible form of street etiquette.

Miss Elaine Goodale, the poetess, is government supervisor of education among the Sioux. She lives in camp or reservation in the most primitive way, traveling from one Indian village to another on horseback or in a "prairie schooner." She deliberately prefers this life to the social success which a woman of her talent and culture might command.

Miss Vida Croly, daughter of Jenny June, goes to Europe soon as chaperon of a little sister but a few years her junior and equally as pretty. Miss Croly has the delicate beauty of color that the world rarely about in Mrs. Langtry seven years ago.

Do not light a sick room at night by means of a jet of gas or a kerosene lamp burning low. Nothing impoverishes the air sooner. Use sperm candles or tapers which burn sperm oil.

To remove claret stains from table linens rub on salt as soon as possible and wash in the usual way. If not entirely removed apply lemon juice and dry in the sun.

SALVATOR'S CHANCE.

Haggin is Offered a Race Against Kingston.

There is considerable talk about a match between Salvator and Kingston. The fast one of Spindrift has been troubled by the rheumatism most of the year, but he is all right now and as speedy as ever.

A few days ago he made a run of a mile and an eighth over the Gravesend course, and is said to have done it in wonderful time. Saturday, at Sheephead Bay, Phil Dwyer was asked if he would match Kingston against Salvator.

He answered: "I'll bet $20,000 he can beat any horse in the world a mile and an eighth or a mile and a quarter."

This leaves no room for doubt that, although no formal challenge has been issued in behalf of Kingston, the Dwyers are ready to match him, and it is only necessary for J. B. Haggin to express a willingness to back Salvator against last year's champion, to get a match. It is a beyond doubt that Mike Dwyer would be glad to get a chance to back Kingston.

The latter is the only horse in the book which table that can carry a mile and a mile, according to good authorities, so far this season, at good $20,000 by a other people's horses. Most of them have lost it Monmouth Park.

In the Spring of 1889 Dwyer won 22 yearlings. Of these, only one, Black Clock, the brother of Sir Dixon, has proved worth starting, and even he is greatly outclassed by two-year-olds that have been starting around New York.

These facts establish a strong probability that the Dwyers are not only willing but eager to back Kingston as a last chance to recover their loss, and if no notice be taken of their quiet expressions on the subject, only a few days will elapse before they will declare themselves. Should Kingston be matched, Mike Dwyer will back him for an enormous amount.

A Fine Pair of Yearlings.

E. Powell, of the Auburn mill ranch, drives a pair of yearlings that are little wonders. One weighs 980 and the other 935 and they go together in harness like an old team. They are unusually well developed, formed and proportioned, and Powell has a right to be proud of what he is doing down on this great property.

With last week's issue, the Placer Argus begins its nineteenth volume, and announces in connection therewith that the paper is now issued by the Placer Argus Publishing Company, comprised of H. H. Richmond, W. D. Gibbs and W. H. H. Fellows, of Placerville, who has purchased a third interest in the paper, and will move over there at once.

The Vermont Senate will be made up of twenty-nine Republicans and one Democrat. The House will consist of 177 Republicans, 58 Democrats and two Farmers' League, with eight towns to be heard in. Page's plurality for Governor is 14,104 and his majority 12,888.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors," which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can IT BE CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, has often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. "My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofula, sore neck from the time she was 2 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLIZ, Naughton, N. J.
